He got out of the car, handing it over to a valet, and walked into the very expensive hotel, making his way to the bar, he ordered up a j/d rocks, and casually looked around, that's when he saw HER.

She was dancing with an Ivy League type, short haircut, nice suit..he walked over to the couple, tapped the guy on the shoulder gently and asked politely, 'mind if I cut in' the guy said 'sure' and handed the lady over to him. She was gorgeous, long red hair flowing, green eyes, absolutely breath taking. They danced, he held her firmly, but not too firmly and he led like he knew what he was doing..he smiled down at her..she was waiting for some corny line she'd heard a million times before, he stayed silent.

The dance ended and they started another, he saw another guy start to approach, intending to cut in, he looked directly at the other guy over her shoulder, the other guy changed his mind and walked back to the bar.

Halfway through the third dance he still hadn't uttered a word until suddenly he leaned down and whispered, 'fancy a fuck in the moonlight' she whispered back 'I thought you would never ask, lucky i'm not wearing any panties'..he gently took her hand in his and they both walked to the large french windows and out onto the patio..His wedding ring the exact match of her smaller size.

Movie Reviews by UrbanBurt

MY RATING: 6.5/10

Liam Neeson is back as retired government operative Bryan Mills for the third time. This time he is accused of a murder he didn't commit and has to use all his skills and resources to prove his innocence. I can't say it's Neesons best work, but that's probably because this is the 3th part in the Taken series. I think like most viewers I was waiting for the mystery we saw in the first part by tumbling down the rabbit hole and get more and more confused of what was what, but instead of that it was a load of action with a plot that was too transparent from the beginning. I guessed the end of the movie after no more than 30 minutes in. I was kind of disappointed by that, especially after I read Luc Besson was one the writers. He's known for the twists he can give to stories and I was actually waiting for that, since it looked so transparent from the start, but it never came. Instead of that it was a simple story, a lot of action with one minor predictable twist.

Of course it wasn't all that bad, although it looks like I didn't enjoy it at all, but nothing is further from the truth. Since this third part is more based on action than the previous parts, they took no expense to make it as good as possible. I loved the police car chase. It was full of action and unpredictable situations. Also the special effects that were used in that particular scene were great to watch. The 'aikido' techniques Neeson used were well choreographed and very entertaining. Using everything to his disposal to take down his opponent was also fun to watch.

The acting was more than good. Liam Neeson and Forest Whitaker are 2 of the best actors of this time in my opinion and also didn't fail me this time. Whitakers personage of the intelligent inspector Franck Dotzler who was chasing Neeson was what kept things interesting from LAPD perspective. He knew who Bryan Mills was, what he was capable of, knowing when he lost the 'battle' and actually respecting him for that. Neeson with his deep, dark, growling voice and superb acting skills was a feast for the eyes.

If you are expecting a repetition of the previous parts, you will be let down entirely. If you will go into it open minded, you will be treated to 1 hour and 45 minutes of entertainment.

JOHN WICK

MY RATING: 7/10

Keanu Reeves is back as the stone cold retired mob hitman John Wick. Reeves is absolutely not my favorite actor, he's actually pretty low on my list, but as far as I'm concerned he is born for this role. With his emotionless expression he gives life to his character. The acting overall wasn't that great at all, although Michael Nyqvist did a great job as the Russian mob boss Viggo Tarasov. The bad acting doesn't really matter since this movie is all about action….and action is what you will get.

The story is very simple. Wick retired from the assassination business over a woman he loves. When his wife dies of natural causes, he is left all alone, but he receives a package the following morning. The package contains the last gift of his wife, a cute and adorable puppy. She gave him this so he wouldn't have to grief all alone. A few days later his house is invaded by no other than the son of his former employer. Not alone his car is stolen, but they kill his puppy too. This triggers Wick to pick up his former profession and find the men responsible for killing his dog. A burst of action follows until the end of the movie.

The action scenes are very well choreographed; in fact it's the best choreography I've seen in years. Bullets are flying throughout the entire movie but within reason. 2 á 3 bullets per victim and then he finishes them off with a headshot. There are so many headshots in this movie; I gave up counting after a while. If it wasn't for the spectacular action, this wouldn't be as great of a movie as it is now. I rather watch a movie with a great story, than one with lots of action, but because of the stunning choreography it kept me entertained until the last minutes. After it was finished I was full of adrenaline and I wanted more.

LÉGION ÉTRANGÈRE

BY OPTIMUSPR1ME

Born in 1973 at the height of the OPEC oil crisis in Paris, France to an Australian father and French mother, with a long tradition of having family men in the military, my destiny was certainly set quickly.

My main language is French but I speak/write 9 languages fluently, including English, German and Dutch.

When I completed High School, I wanted to join the French Army, but unfortunately could not serve with a dual nationality. The only choice left for me at the time was to join the Légion Étrangère, otherwise known to most as the French Foreign Legion. I spent 22 years proudly serving and want to talk about just one Esprit De Corps experience.

To dismantle the myth, we are not criminals and we are not men who want to leave their old lives behind. The movies of Hollywood have romanticised the Legion but some basic things are true, things like Esprit De Corps, we never give up and are used for difficult situations. I was put in the Régiment Étranger for 15 week training. The following was one of the occurrences during this training.

One morning before our daily 20 mile march in full kit (all combat gear), we were told there would be hand grenade and flash bang training when we got back.

Once we came back we all got handed one flash bang and one normal grenade (both live) to use in the trench. The trench is a bunker-like construction in the ground, with a sandy area behind it in which one would throw the grenade. Sounds easy enough, right? In principle it would be.

The idea was to walk up, pull the pin, hand the pin to the Sergeant, throw it over the ledge and everyone would duck for the flying sand and possible debris. I was 11th in line and one after another grenades were thrown, until …

the legionnaire in front of me grabbed the grenade, flipped it to his left hand, pulled the pin, handed the grenade to the Sergeant and in his panic he threw the pin into the trench. Slow motion started and the Sergeant looked at the grenade in his hand and screamed out for everyone to hit the deck. He hurled the grenade over the edge, and everyone thought they were going to die, but the edge of the bunker was high enough to shield us from harm but NOT from the sound.

From that point no one could actually hear a single thing, we started laughing but we could not hear each other, the ring in our ears lasted for hours but we regained hearing eventually.

How did this happen? The answer was quite simple, the legionnaire was a lefty so when the grenade was handed to him in his wrong hand, he flipped it over to his proper hand. What happened above was my first taste of Esprit De Corps, which translates to...'a feeling of pride, fellowship, and common loyalty shared by the members of a particular group'. In this case, we were all worried about each other rather than ourselves, every other man's well being counted, not just our own.

I only had a little time to give you one experience during my 22 years in the army. Next time I will tell you more about Esprit De Corps, the rest of my training and perhaps my first mission.

The KAT Interview: Mr. Gooner

I paid a visit online today to one of our Administrators, Mr. Gooner to be precise, to ask him on his views about life and love. He was very kind, invited me inside and made me a drink...which tasted like the shithouse door on a fishing trawler. I choked it down anyway; I love punishing myself.
OK, here we go…
A word from Mr. Gooner – "Well firstly before I start these questions are...FUBAR but they cracked me up before I even thought about answering them. Anyway here goes..."

Q1: Do you drink to excess?
A: No not anymore; I have had a number of months without it over the past year because I heavily binge drink if I get on it. Always the "first in the pub and last out" guy, then the first on it the following afternoon by the time I roll out my pit lol.

Q2: Do you like corduroy pillows?
A: LOL, no!, pillows are pillows to me but as it goes the ones I have at the moment are breaking my neck. It's either them or the too many hours dazing at the laptop.

Q3: Do you go skydiving in your underwear?
A: I prefer to go naked, if it's a bit chilly I tend to slip on a frilly thong and a pair of lacy stockings. A bit of protection is better than none.

Q4: Have you ever ridden a capybara at a rodeo?
A: No, to my knowledge, but after too many beers I could have ridden anything. You only live once.

Q5: What is your favorite psychedelic color?
A: Don't have a favorite as long it contains a picture of gorgeous curvy & hubby lady; I am easy.

Q6: How many notches are there on that .44 you're pointing at me?
A: None, it's to scare you from asking any more questions that make me believe you're an hilarious nutter, lol.

Q7: Have you ever noticed how the fluff in your belly button is never the same color as the shirt you're wearing?
A: I can't say I have; I am too clean, making me every woman's dream!

Q8: What would you do if you found your birth certificate had expired?
A: I'd make me 16 again and not make as many mistakes with beer goggles on; those damn goggles kept producing kids.

Q9: You were born naked, wet and hungry - did things then get better, or worse?
A: They got worse but I forgot about it in my early teens finding beer, weed & women!

Q10: If you bought a microwave bed, would you get 8 hours sleep in 10 minutes?
A: Definitely, I hate sleeping. That is my next invention after I finish building the rocket I am working on.

Mr. Gooner – "I enjoyed that for the unusual FUBAR interview, thanks mate!"
(thumbs up!)

PXG'S REVIEW ROUNDUP

Gaming

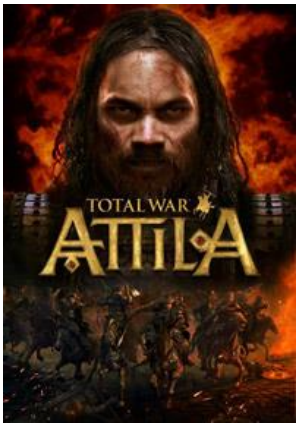
Quite a few games have been released over February 2015, the main ones that we've seen are Evolve (an online FPS game linking cooperation and competition together), Total War: Attila (a game where you control hordes of soldiers and fight off famine and disease), and Verdun (a World War 1 FPS game that has been in Beta for a while).

Evolve is looking good so far, I've played it for a couple of hours with friends, the game mechanics all work, and the concept is pretty cool. The most common game type is 4 vs. 1. In this game type one player is a 'beast', the player who's the beast can choose between several types of monsters, from the Goliath to the Wraith. The other 4 players are hunters, their goal is to take down the beast before it reaches the 3rd evolution.

The hunters have 4 classes to choose from, Assault, Medic, Trapper, and Support. The Assault class features heavy weapons, and are incredibly destructive. They have one purpose, to take down the beast. Medics work to heal other players and provide support, such as revival. Trappers are one of the key members of the hunter team, they provide the means of finding the beasts. In gameplay, the team must find certain creatures, and the trappers are the ones to do it. Laying down traps, and surveillance is their speciality. Support use heavy weapons to slow and maim the beasts, they also can provide buffs to their teammates such as increased firepower, and better defence.

The game has pretty high minimum specs, but any avid gamer should be fine. It has multiplayer, and single player game modes and the specs are below:

Minimum PC Specifications: Intel Core 2 Duo 2.4 GHz/AMD Athlon 64 X2 3.2 GHz, 4 GB RAM, graphic card 1 GB GeForce GTX 560/Radeon HD 5770 or better, 50 GB HDD, Windows 7 64-bit



Total War: Attila looks just like all the other Total War games, but it isn't. Featuring much better graphics, but also a much higher recommended specification. The game combines turn based strategy, with real time tactics, making this an exciting fast paced game perfect for any strategist. The player controls a vast army of soldiers, horses, and boats.

The fate of the world is in your hands, use fire to burn cities to the ground and terrify defenders, or destroy entire cities or regions by using the new 'raze' feature that wipes it from the campaign map. It's all up to you. Alternatively, play as the Roman Empire, starting the game with vast territories, as the game progresses though, your power will start to dwindle, can you survive the might of the enemy?

The game's mechanics have been improved tremendously with the latest optimised and modified technology, this allows for tonnes of features such as politics, family trees, technological progression, and civic management. The improvements to the engine also allow for period-specific technologies, armaments, cultures, and more which makes the game much more realistic than previous games from the Total War series, the improvements also allow breath taking graphics and also allows the maps to be much larger, so all in all a more varied and greater game.

As a keen fan of the original Total War games, this was a huge step up. And allowed for much more intense and fun gameplay.

Minimum PC Specifications: Intel Core 2 Duo 3 GHz, 3 GB RAM, graphic card 512 MB GeForce 8800 GT/ Radeon HD 2900 XT or better, 35 GB HDD, Windows Vista 64-bit

The other two featured games that have arrived in February are Verdun and Halo: Spartan Strike. Verdun is a first-person shooting game based during World War 1. The game is solely multiplayer, but it has been rumoured a campaign may follow. The game is specifically set during The Battle of Verdun, fought between February and December of 1916, Verdun has four game modes so far and has been in beta for a while, while the game doesn't look quite finished, it's well on its way to being a good, fun game.

The developers want the game to be as historically correct as possible, so no overpowered guns or any of that sh*t. The maps were designed with geographically correct heightmaps, and other technology to make it as realistic as possible. Overall, I've found this a very fun game to play, as I've watched it progress during the beta. There is cross-platform gaming between Windows, Mac and Linux. The game is also fully compatible with SteamOS. The game is also stored on a 'cloud' meaning that anyone can play the game without needing to install the game (apparently).

Recommended PC Specifications: Pentium IV 2.4 GHz, 1 GB RAM, Karta grafiki 128 MB (GeForce 6600 or better), Windows XP SP2/Vista/7/8

Last out of the most anticipated games was something I thought to be a bit strange, quite a lot of people messaged in to me asking if I'd upload the game Halo: Spartan Strike. The game looks ridiculously similar to Halo: Spartan Assault, and it virtually is. The cover to me just looks awesome, but when I saw what the game held. I was massively disappointed.

Developed by 343 Industries, who in my opinion ruined Halo, the game has a 'completely new' story set during the events of Halo 2. The player controls a group of UNSC troops through missions and has to defend them against enemies in an attempt to save Earth. You will battle against Covenant and Promethean enemies through 30 all new missions. The game consists of a compelling new story (bullst), improved touch controls, updated graphics, and 'much more'… According to Halo Waypoint, "Halo: Spartan Strike delivers an epic adventure with thrilling battles and unparalleled visuals for mobile devices."

The game didn't get very high expected ratings before release, and I doubt the ratings will be very high after.

Recommended PC Specifications: Core 2 Duo 1.6 GHz, 1 GB RAM, graphic card 512 MB (GeForce 8600 GT or better), 2.5 GB HDD, Windows Vista/7/8/8.1

So those were the top most anticipated games of February (apparently), but now onto what's coming next month. For March 2015, we have a few interesting things, the main event is the Game Developers conference, where hopefully we'll find out about some great new games, the Independent Games Festival, and PAX East. There are also a few games coming out in March which look pretty good, the main ones are Battlefield Hardline and GTA V for PC. Battlefield Hardline takes a completely new look on the way Battlefield is played, changing to a 'cops vs. criminals' theme the game adds brilliant new gameplay to show police and the "war on crime". This is a big change from all the previous Battlefield games that have been set around military aspects. As a player of the demo, personally I thought it was fun, but not quite as good as the military. I liked the other games for their realism, and the way they completely beat Call of Duty in every way. When playing this, I felt that the gameplay was less realistic and less challenging. Anyway, as the full game version has yet to be released, I am hoping it's better than the beta, and I hope they'll fix some of the many bugs I found.

The new mechanics for this game are pretty interesting, adding tasers and handcuffs. Not sure what sort of stuff you'll get up to in the locked bedroom with those handcuffs, but I'm sure you'll all have fun. The game has 4 main new game modes, Heist, Rescue, Bloodmoney, Hotwire Mode, and Crosswire. Heist, not surprisingly, sets one team as the criminals, they must collect money from armoured trucks, then move the money to an extraction point all while the police must take them all down.

Rescue Mode features a supposedly close quartered level of gameplay, where the police must save hostages from the criminals. This overall sounds quite fun to me, but I'm not sure if it will be. Bloodmoney mode pits 2 factions against each other, each team must fight to retrieve $5 million from an open crate, and deposit it back at their truck. The team with the most money under the time limit wins. Hotwire mode allows for a much faster gameplay. Police try to chase down the criminals in vast maps, and this sounds really good to me. But could be disappointing. Crosshair Mode is a fast paced, action packed game mode with a 5x5 layout, the criminals must assassinate a VIP, whereas the police must sacrifice themselves to defend him. The VIP is a criminal who has become a witness, and this makes it all the more fun.

GTA V is a game that has been massively hyped up, I know for a fact that many people have been talking about it due to the amount of emails and PM's I get about the game, but the question is "is it really worth it?".

Featuring a huge price tag of £39.99 or $59.99, this game really isn't worth it. The gameplay is identical to all the previous games, with not much new happening, but there are some bonuses. First, it's on PC, with much better graphics, and framerates over 30FPS. That's a start. The game got a pretty high rating on console, 9/10 for almost every review, as the game is likely to be mostly based on porting methods, the game could be buggy as fk.

The game had issues in the past with servers for multiplayer gameplay, which caused a lot of fuss, but hopefully this has all been fixed.

The game for console was the fastest selling entertainment product in history, so that's pretty good. Generating over one billion dollars within the first three days, but who cares as I'm sure you're all just going to pirate it.

The remastered version, which is the one coming to PC, has better graphics such as increased draw distance, more detailed textures, and upgraded weather effects. This should all make the game "more realistic" despite the fact you can see flying cows, and drive around in invisible cars.

Recommended PC Specifications: Core i5 3.2GHz, 8 GB RAM, graphic card 2 GB (NVIDIA GTX 660 or better), 65GB HDD, Windows 7/8/8.1

A few other small games that are coming out March 2015 for consoles, are games such as:

- Amplitude HD (a game looking very similar to Audiosurf… but with better graphics)
- MLB 15: The Show (which is just like your everyday baseball game)
- DmC: Definitive Edition
- Code Name: STEAM (a 3DS game about battling aliens)
- Final Fantasy Type-0 HD (another Final Fantasy game, they've exhausted the collection)
- Bloodborne (which overall just looks awesome, lots of blood and gore)

Overall, the games of the past month, and next month are looking ok. We'll 'see' you in the next magazine, if you have any questions to ask, or games you want reviews about, feel free to PM me on KAT, my username is PXgamer. Game reviews and articles are only about games for PC platform.

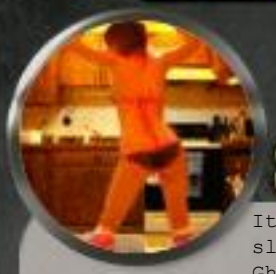
The Deth Show

Episode #1: Dating



Smittech

It was a beautiful evening, stars so bright and a slight fog. As I knocked at her door I heard a Ghoslish " Just a minute", then she open the door and stood there in her most beautiful torn, blood ridden gown I have ever seen, her crown on her head and she just looked up at me a said in her sweet voice " I chew you!".
I blushed and offered here big Valentine shape candy box and a dozen rose stems (thorny as hell). She opened the box a let out a loud "Brainsssssssss" cry. I said yes, and there is chocolate covered ears, eyes and tongues there too. I asked here if she was ready to go out to dinner and grab her good hand (the other one was rotting) and walked her down the steps. As we walked under the stars (I don't have to worry about her eating my brains as seeing my neck is so long), she sang me some old country tunes and I was just smiling away. When we got to the diner, I swooshed her in quick to my favorite table (in the back room, can't have her spoiling her dinner on the patrons). The owner was a friend of mine and as he cooked up something for me, he sent the dishwasher to the graveyard to get the best brains he could fine, for her. We ate and as we were leaving she pulled on my neck and tried to give me a kiss, but I stood tall (ain't gonna fall for that one, got to get her drunk first, then she forgets to bite), so we headed over to my pad for some cuddling.....more later.

Torrents Day is upon us once again. This most special of days, March 30th. When asked to go out into KAT world and dig up a story for this issue I was armed with only one piece of information – talk to Mr. Pink

I thought…THE Mr. Pink? Really? Site Administrator Mr. Pink – seriously? His importance on the site is known by all Katians. Surely conversing with him via PM was only something I thought might come when I had broken a most sacred KAT rule and he was about to bring the hammer down and delete me? Well, actually, I'm sure he leaves that to the Mods to take care of, but I equated it to being told I had to go "see the principal" at school – that never had a good ending.

But I had a mission, and the pm had to be sent. I typed my questions nervously, hit send and waited. And waited. And waited. Well…truth be told a couple of those waits were within an hour of me sending the pm. All in all, I was happy to see a very friendly PM come back pretty quickly.

My first question of how he came up with the date had a surprising answer to me, as I'm sure for many others who will read this article. March 30th is his birthday, as Mr. Pink explained in his reply:

"I'lll be honest with you and something many don't know about Torrents Day… it actually started off on my day of birth on the 30th March. I'm not one to do the celebrating thing and usually just end up on the beer with friends. I thought why aim the attention at me when it can all be put towards something a bit more important? So Torrents Day began... I didn't realise it was going to be so wide spread through different torrent communities as well as kickass and I guess it shows you how things can have an affect with power by numbers. Especially something as strong as file sharing."

Mr. Pink was quick to tell me that a good friend of his, Bubanee was instrumental in promoting the day when it was first implemented in 2011 and went as far as adding Torrents Day to his own site and even came up with a Torrents Day album. It began with one thread and an achievement put together with not a lot of pre-planning. What it turned in to was the most users on line up until that point for KAT and the beginning of a yearly tradition.

Asked if he is aware if the day is marked with any of the other Torrent sites Mr. Pink said:

"A lot of users between sites jump back and forward and I reckon every torrent site has given it a mention on that day. Extratorrents gives it some backing every year also. Its nice to know the day isn't just restricted to kickasstorrents because the day is aimed at all pirates from around the world."

Mr. Pink says it makes him very proud to see that Torrents Day continues to get bigger and better - as a result bigger sites are giving it recognition all around the world. With admin and staff from KAT continuing to have competitions and achievements each year it brings more and more traffic to the site to upload and download, "And that's what we want. It's these users that are important and make the site what it is, so as always, we will be expecting high numbers for traffic on this day and of course, we want the users to enjoy being here."

Mr. Pink expressed his hope that he would like all users not just on kickass, but between other torrent sites who spread the word, to remember all of the effort that is put towards this day. “You are all making noise by supporting this and proving how strong we actually are.”

In closing, Mr. Pink agrees that uploading and downloading and having to deal with DMCA takedowns and infringement notices on a daily basis is difficult. It is important for us all to remember that as one site falls, the next becomes strong because we stick together as a community. For him, that is what is important, “to enjoy the day that is OURS, and to have a very Happy Torrents Day 2015.”

Upon completion of this article I received another PM from Mr. Pink – he has returned from retirement to once again take up the reins as a Site Administrator. Welcome back Mr. Pink!

As we celebrate Happy Torrents Day 2015, don’t forget to take a moment to wish Mr. Pink a Happy Birthday as well.

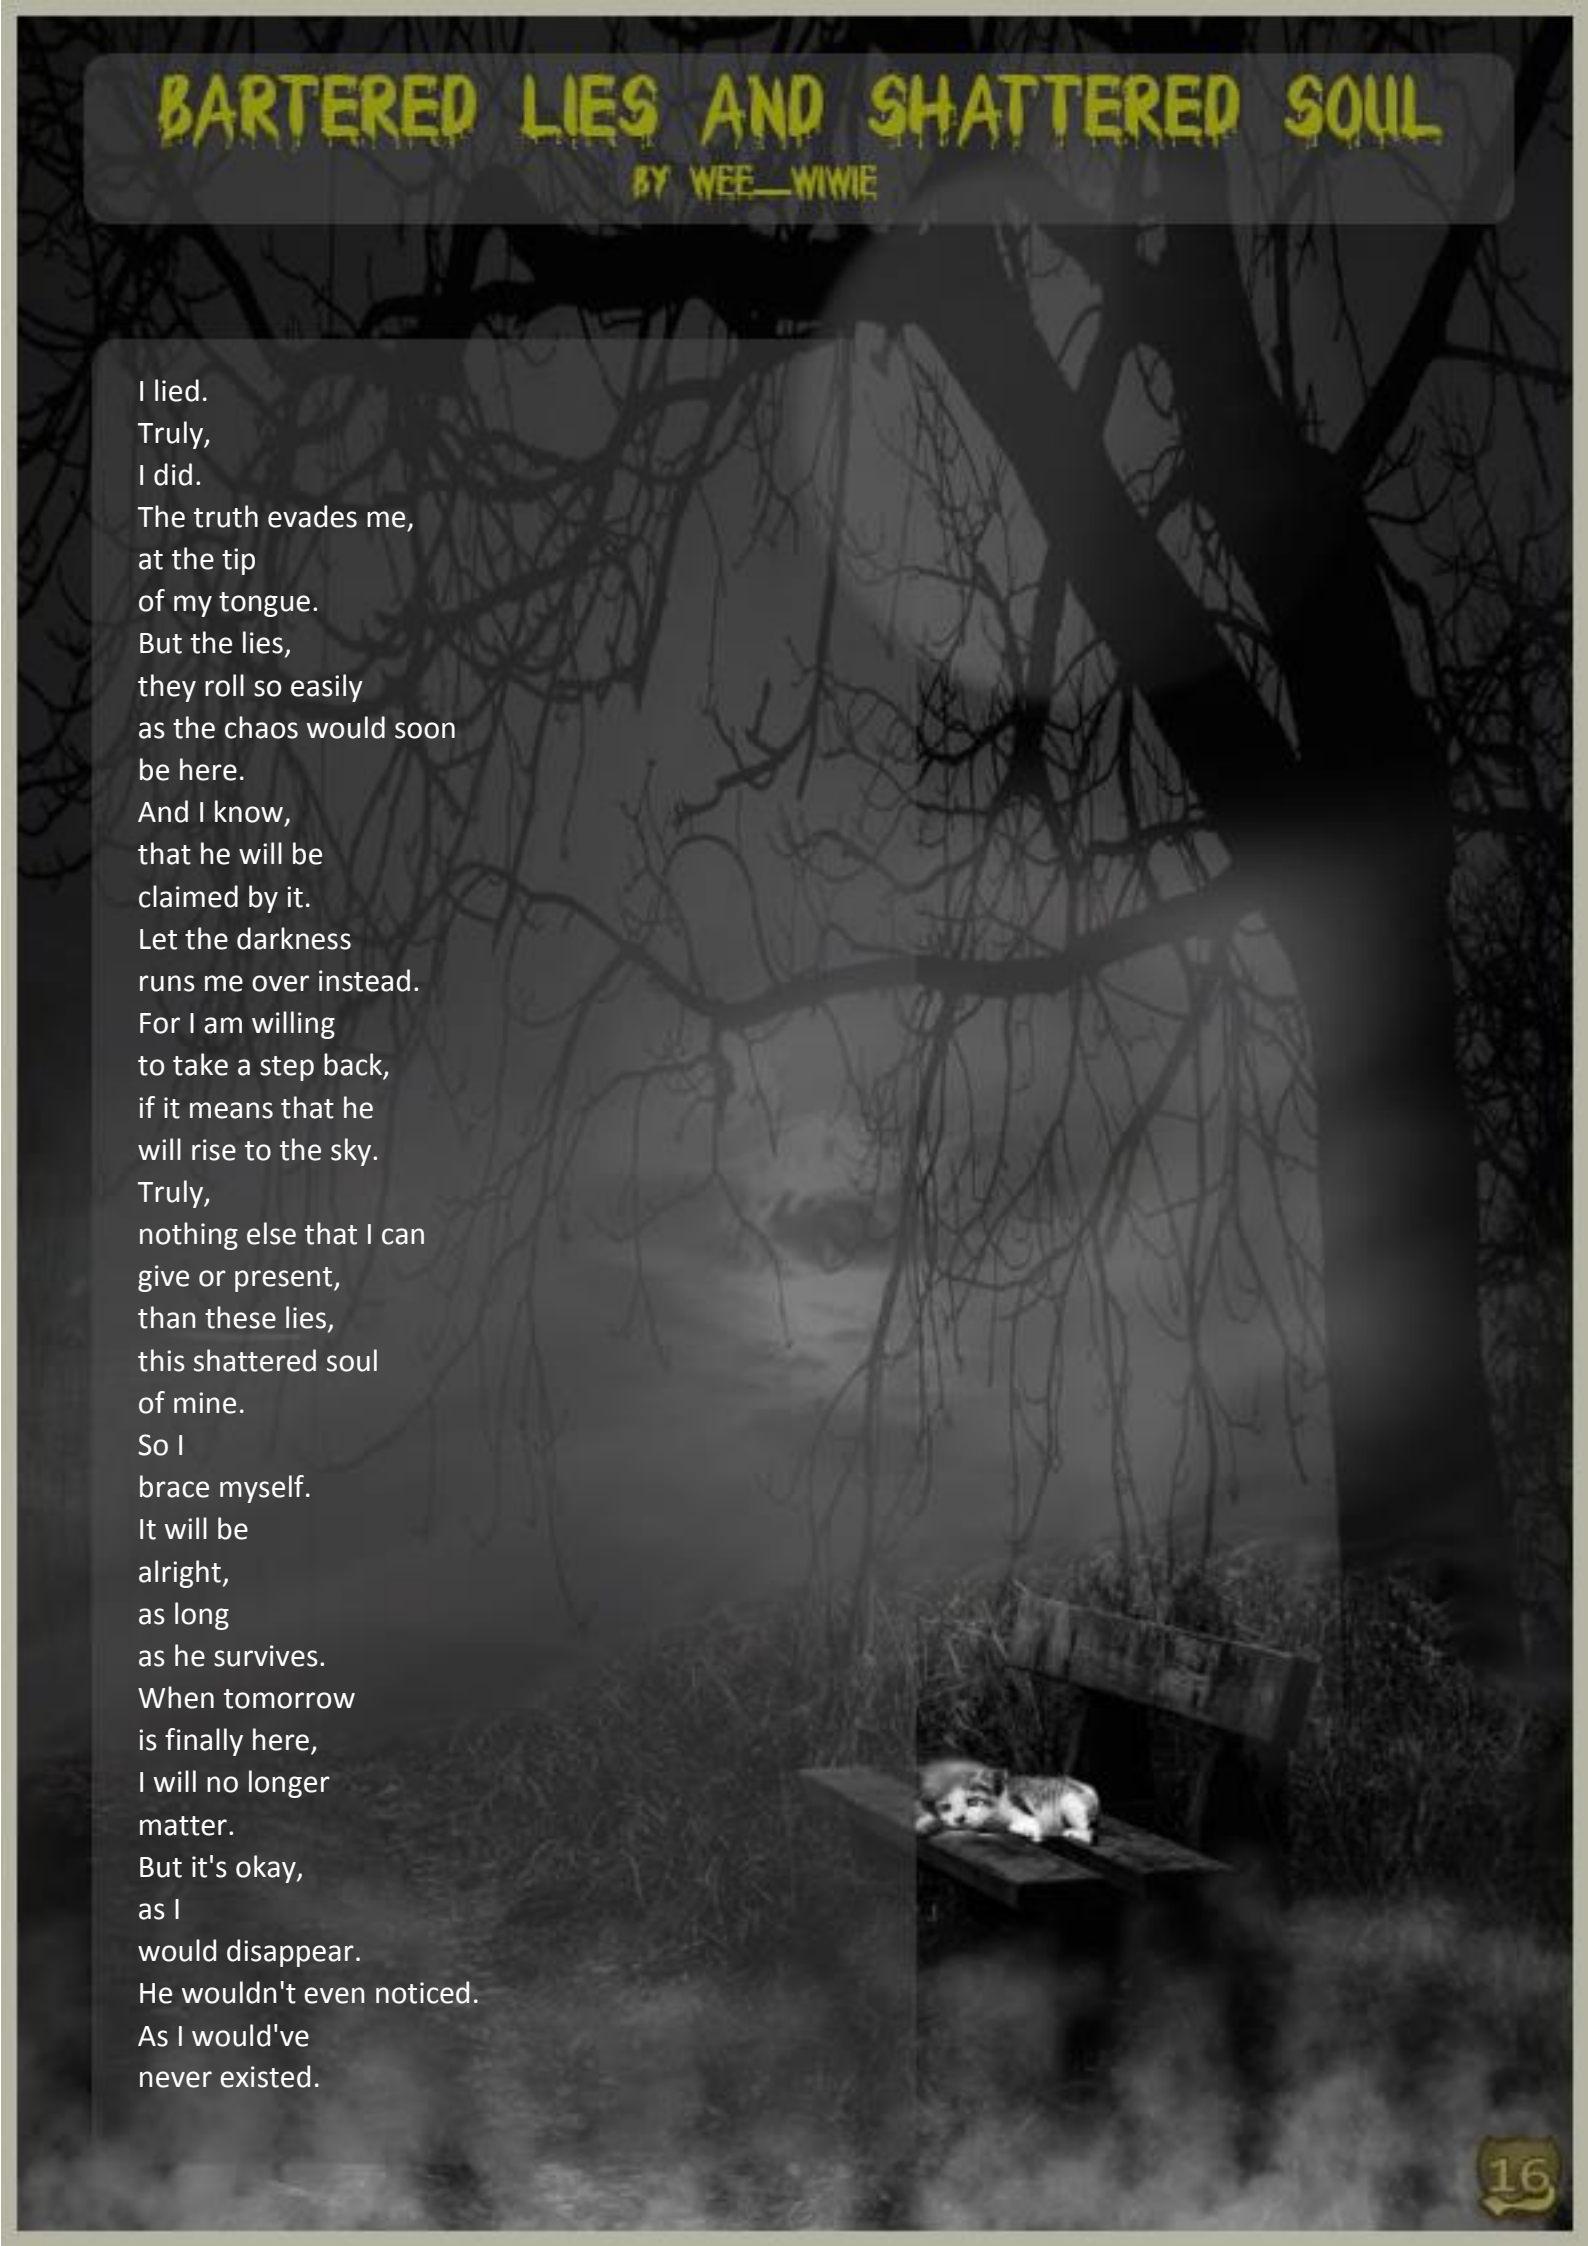
For this year’s Torrents Day, with Mr. Pink in retirement when I began this article, he gave Mr. Gooner credit for deciding to continue with the celebration this year, as well as a very honorable mention to Bubanee for his continued support since the beginning, and elma who worked on it last year.

In a brief interview with Mr. Gooner, he replied:

“Well there's no doubt that Torrents Day was a genius idea, bringing everyone together & creating a tradition we will always remember. Therefore it's definitely something I/we believe should be continued yearly grabbing as much attention as possible. A torrent site of course encourages users to upload torrents and a day like Torrents Day is the perfect way in every way. Users uploading on the day should at least be added to the small text in the rules as I am sure you will ALL agree.”

BARTERED LIES AND SHATTERED SOUL

BY WEE_WIWIE



I lied.
Truly,
I did.
The truth evades me, at the tip
of my tongue.
But the lies,
they roll so easily
as the chaos would soon be here.
And I know, that he will be claimed by it.
Let the darkness
runs me over instead.
For I am willing to take a step back, if it means that he will rise to the sky.
Truly,
nothing else that I can give or present,
than these lies,
this shattered soul
of mine.
So I
brace myself.
It will be alright, as long as he survives.
When tomorrow
is finally here,
I will no longer

But it's okay, as I would disappear.
He wouldn't even noticed.
As I would've

She said 'come on over, sit beside me' … I thought 'fk that, I'll sit over here.' I explained what I wanted for the interview and she said 'fire away'. Here's the result.

Q/ Do you drink to excess?
A/ I'd drink to anything.
Q/ Do you like corduroy pillows?
A/ Cord pillows – No. I leave my skin hanging from them and they leave the ruts in my soft rotting flesh, very messy to launder.
Q/ Do you go skydiving in your underwear?
A/ Skydiving – Underwear? Who wears underwear?
Q/ Have you ever ridden a capybara at a rodeo?
A/ No, but I rode Smitty for first place at… n/m… we won't talk about that.
Q/ What is your favourite psychedelic colour?
A/ Next time I hear colours I'll mail the winning colour to your tastebud orifice… oops… that was my flashback talking.
Q/ How many notches are there on that .44 you're pointing at me?
A/ It's not loaded, is yours?
Q/ Have you ever noticed how the fluff in your bellybutton is never the same colour as the shirt you're wearing?
A/ Yes, and I'm really tired of MisterGaga leaving his roaches in there.
Q/ What would you do if you found your birth certificate had expired?
A/ It already did, I scoffed Anette14's birth certificate, now I can't buy me beer ffs.
Q/ You were born naked, wet and hungry, did things get better?....or worse?
A/ I would warm up 10 bodies at a time for group feeding frenzies, a lot of deleted users to get rid of these days, can't have their bodies stinking up KAT now can we.
Q/ If you bought a microwave bed, would you get 8 hours of sleep in 10 minutes?
A/ Yes, if you were with me I'd still have 9 minutes and 30 seconds left.

Many thanks for answering these 10 questions, as you can see, I have answered the first one for you to prove I am truly insane but still lucid. You may change that reply if you don't approve. Once again ZombieQueen, thank you for your input, the Mounties will be in touch.

Monthly Music Series or MMS for short is not some thread for people who love music. It is a gateway to new music, new friends, new interests etc. With the right, amount of participation from as many members as possible, it could be beneficial to improving your musical taste and to learn about new artists/bands and meeting people who share in the same musical tastes as you do.
MMS puts out a themed compilation (they dont call them torrents) every month with the goal to turn people onto new music and to boost listeners knowledge of music as a whole.

ANIMELISTIC

Genre: Action, Mecha, Comedy, Sci-Fi

This is a great anime brought to you by Gainax, which produced FLCL, Evangelion, and many more. If you're not a mecha-anime person, this would be the one to watch even if you dislike mecha with a fiery passion. Gurren Lagann is a great entry level anime to begin with. It's about a boy named Simon and his bro Kamina [best/only friend] wanting to make something out of themselves. Simon is a talented digger and Kamina is the rebellious one that always gets them in trouble. Kamina wants to leave the underground village and gets Simon to drill a hole to the surface. That's when the action starts and they meet the lovely Yoko. Yea, she might be fanservice, or as it's called in the business, "PLOT", don't let that fool you. She's got attitude and spunk, and quite a lot of both. That's just the beginning. Once they get onto the surface the story starts to get real interesting.The story is easy to follow and viewers are likely to really get hooked on watching it, with a lot of viewers watching from beginning to end. There is quite a lot of diversity in this series to keep various types of viewers interested. It is very comedic at times, then it turns into a straight out action, and sometimes it gets dramatic and you start getting feelings. I would really recommend people to watch this with friends or even family members, as you'll probably want to talk to someone while you're watching or even afterwards.

EUREKA SEVEN™

Genre: Adventure, Drama, Sci-Fi, Romance, Mecha

This anime is brought to you by BONES, which also produced other great anime such as Fullmetal Alchemist, Soul Eater, Space Dandy, and many others. This anime is full of great action scenes but also contains drama. Some background info: particles in the air known as Trapar and everything that floats or flies has motors that harness trapar waves. It starts off with the main character known as Renton living life in some backwater town. Renton loves to do a sport similar to skateboarding called “reffing” which to explain in simple terms, is like a hoverboard.

He then meets a girl named Eureka who proceeds to crash into his home and burns all his belongings with a flamethrower. I’m trying to not give away too much, Eureka finds herself in a situation where she needs something from Rentons’ grandfather and he willingly risks his life to obtain it. Renton ends up learning he can also control an LFO [Light Finding Operation Mecha] which comes in handy. From there it gets good where Renton joins the crew of Gekkostate, which is comprised of anti-government hippies. This begins the abuse of Renton by the crew and especially their leader, Holland. Sometimes you forget that everyone is constantly being hunted by the government and the world itself is also in great danger.

A Verified Uploader's Journey

Uploaders are the heart and soul of our torrent community. They provide the currency (torrents) that a torrent site is built using. We all know how difficult DMCA takedowns and copyright infringements have been on a lot of our uploaders, so we here at KAT Mag decided to talk one on one with a Verified Uploader. To shine a spotlight on the person behind the torrents, their journey, and the reasons they choose to keep sharing.

analogkid6103 was kind enough to take a few moments from his busy day to chat with me.

"I used to hate computers for years, thought they were not important. Time taught me different."

He began on an ex-girlfriend's laptop she had lost interest in. At first it was downloading from pirate sites, finding all of the music he had been looking for, for half his life. He had no idea what a client was, or how that worked with a torrent file, but he learned quickly. Not only about pirating, but building computers from the ground up. With the learning curve slightly less curvy, he was on his way. From his description I would say analogkid6103 is most definitely one of the many self taught computer geeks here on KAT, and I mean that in the nicest way!

By 2013 he had mastered downloading, sharing, and wondered – what next? On New Year's Eve 2013 he manages to upload his first torrent to TPB. His goal – "become the rarest music content uploader around." He soon learns that uploading only rare content is not building him a fan base to help keep his uploads healthy, and he began mixing in music content collected over 20 years, ripping and posting them in album formats because in his opinion, "When you get an urge for an album you once had on vinyl or cassette, you want it."

He earned a pink skull at TPB by the end of July 2014 and is very proud of that accomplishment. After using KAT for over a year, doing anon searches he finally decided to register to upload and help his seed base. Because of some issues on TPB with an anon, who was also causing issues on KAT, he came here on the hunt and found RonthePirate via vikingjester.

He thanks RonthePirate for bringing him into the KAT "fold". He worked diligently to become a respected uploader, and then VUL. In his own words, "I have shared much, and will share more because that's what it has all been about. From my first post to my latest, it's all about the share."

Dust in the Wind by Kansas
By Kosjeyr

Genesis 3:19 King James Version (KJV):
'In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.'

Dust in the Wind by Kansas was a last minute addition to the album Point of Know Return which was released in October of 1977 as the song was recorded between June and July that same year. A powerful song for being one of the band's first acoustic tracks and how the story goes is that Kerry Livgren was having a fingering exercise and his wife, Vicci, heard what was being played at the time and she remarked that the melody was nice and encouraged him to write lyrics for it.

I guess that is how most songs start out; the melody comes before the lyrics. But the lyrics do reflect the Biblical Verse above; 'for dust thou art, and dust shalt thou return.' This song, yet slow and can make one deeply sadden, has many different meaning for all that have listened to it. For me more often then not, every time I hear it now reminds me of a fellow United States Airman, Michael Lamar Reio, whom had passed away due to a car wreck when him and I were in Okinawa, Japan. He was a good friend of mine for the short time I knew him. For those who would want to see a picture of him, please go here: http://www.hcso.tampa.fl.us/A-Z-Directory/H/Honoring-Fallen-Military/Heroes/Reio.aspx

Back to the song, the lyrics fit the melody; they are like bread and butter, PB & J, etcetera. For only being three minutes and twenty-six seconds long, I feel that this is one of Kansas' greatest songs, both influential and philosophical.

OTG'S SILLY PAGES

THE KAT INTERVIEW: RONTHEPIRATE

I paid a visit online today to one of our most popular members, RonThePirate to be precise, to ask him his views about life and love.. He was very kind, invited me inside and made me a drink… which he tells me he made in an old 1860s outhouse that smelled like crap, and this was the good stuff!

I accepted graciously and after I had put the flames out in my mouth, asked him in my best helium voice, "May I ask you 10 questions about your likes and dislikes on any given subject?"… and he said 'of course, fire away'. I choked back another mouthful of the molten liquid and said, 'OK, hang on, here we go'.

Q/ Do you drink to excess?

A/ I'd drink to anything.

Q/ Do you like corduroy pillows?

A/ Doesn't matter what her chest is covered with.

Q/ Do you go skydiving in your underwear?

A/ Yes, but it usually disintegrates after 1,000 feet. People love it.

Q/ Have you ever ridden a capybara at a rodeo?

A/ No I haven't. My yak won't allow me to.

Q/ What is your favourite psychedelic colour?

A/ Bacon-coloured!

Q/ How many notches are there on that .44 you're pointing at me?

A/ Four…… Soon to be five if you ask me a lot more personal questions.

Q/ Have you ever noticed how the fluff in your belly button is never the same colour as the shirt you're wearing?

A/ But it always matches my wife's blouse.

Q/ What would you do if you found your birth certificate had expired?

A/ Study for my renewal test, pray I pass it. Hope they don't ask me to take a urine test!

Q/ You were born naked, wet and hungry, did things get better?... or worse?

A/ I'll let you know after the nudist colony dinner and cocktails.

Q/ If you bought a microwave bed, would you be able to get 8 hours sleep in 10 minutes?

A/ Only if I could sleep on the turntable.

Many thanks for answering these 10 questions, as you can see, I have answered the first one to prove I'm truly insane but still lucid. You may change that reply if you don't approve. Once again RonThePirate, thank you for your input, the feds will be in touch…

METAL BAND OF THE MONTH

BY INFINITY.

ANIMALS AS LEADERS

Country of origin: USA.
Active from 2007 to present.
Genre: Progressive Metal, Djent.

Personnel:
1. Tosin Abasi - Guitars
2. Javier Reyes - Guitars
3. Matt Garstka - Drums

It's not often that you see African-Americans in the metal scene. Indeed, there have been several such musicians like Tony MacAlpine, Terrance Hobbs etc who are certainly great in their own ways but it is still a rarity. However there is one Nigerian-American guitarist everybody must definitely check out: TOSIN ABASI.

Once a member of the now disbanded technical metalcore band, Reflux, Tosin Abasi is one guitarist everybody would want in their band, a genuinely humble person with insane guitar skills. Abasi initially had no intention of starting a band of his own but when Prosthetic Records asked him about creating a solo album for them, he started what has now become a landmark in '00s prog metal, ANIMALS AS LEADERS. The name was inspired by a novel named Ishmael by Daniel Quinn which dealt with anthropocentrism and he states that he coined it as a reminder that we are all essentially animals. It is also interesting to note that engineer and one of the pioneers of the djent movement in prog metal, Misha Mansoor helped Abasi in making the album by programming a few guitar solos and drums. Thus, the self titled album was released April 2009.

2010 was a year of touring for AAL, and that too with notable bands like Decapitated, The Faceless, Cephalic Carnage, Veil of Maya among many others. The band's first single 'Wave of Babies' was also released the same year. In November of 2011 they went on to release their first LP 'Weightless'.

They soon headlined a tour of Europe and subsequently returned to North America. In March 2012, Navene Koperweis, their first drummer, left the band and Matt Garstka joined AAL instead. On November of the same year, Misha Mansoor announced AAL's third album which was released via Sumerian Records on March 25, 2014, entitled 'The Joy of Motion'.

AAL is without a doubt one of the best bands of modern prog metal and Abasi is one amazingly talented technical musician (His disfigured looking pick thumb is proof), and therefore, it is rightfully the first ever entrant in INFINITY.'S METAL MUSICIAN/BAND OF THE MONTH for the KICKASS TORRENTS OFFICIAL MAGAZINE.

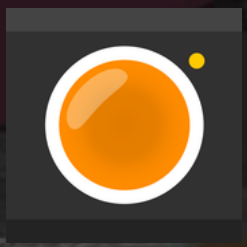
Top Tracks:
Ka$cade, Lippincott, Tooth & Claw, The Woven Web, Nephele.

PXG'S APPLICATIONS & SHITS REVIEW

Quite a lot of software has been brought to light in February this year, the main few are Trim and Sleep Better in my opinion, both of these are iOS apps but Sleep Better is also available on the Android's Google Play store.

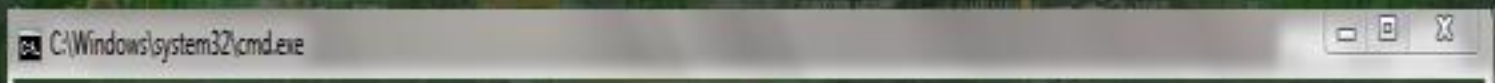
Trim is an app that allows you to post full sized photos to your Instagram account. I guess this isn't really something new, and to me it does sound a bit pointless. But… it does meet a few nice points. Firstly, it's ad-free and apparently will never have ads, to me this did sound suspicious as I always wonder why people would make it for free. But, the developer just sounds like a generous guy. Anyway, it's also very fast. The application has permission to look through your photos, and then with just one tap, it posts. The application just works by adding black borders to your photo meaning it will still fit the stupid square shape that Instagram forces upon you, so to be honest. That is literally all it does, it bypasses the stupid restrictions that Instagram have, so it's quite a nice app. I know the app came out in January, but I think it deserves an honourable mention for all those Insta-fans out there.

Sleep Better is an app that has been created and developed by the well-known company, Runtastic. They make apps for all kinds of lifestyle enhancements, but this new app is all about getting the right amount of sleep. For me, sleep is a massive issue, and so this app is a great help. It's available for both iOS and Android, but like usual… not for Windows Phone. The app can track your sleep and help you to reach your sleeps full potential. You can add attributes to your sleep such as if you've had a stressful day, if you're sleeping in someone else's bed, and other things. It has alarms, timers, and you can keep a dream diary. The only thing I use it for is to wake myself up, but I know there are a huge amount of possibilities and combinations for every user.



Hydra is a new app that was released in February, it is currently only available on the iOS Appstore, but perhaps it will soon be made for Android and Windows Phone. The app is designed to let you 'take beautiful pictures even in the most difficult lighting conditions'. To me this sounded pretty good, so I downloaded it to my iOS device. Hydra has that same weird layout as all the other camera apps. Featuring a settings bar at the bottom, and a horribly large orange button. It supports HDR, Zooming, Low Light and Video in HDR, these settings 'should' allow for the best photos and videos your camera can take, and it 'should' boost your camera to its full potential. For me though, it just looked exactly the same as the normal image. The cool thing I think, is the ability to change between 720p and 1080p, this is useful, but if the image is the same quality, it makes this function pretty pointless. The reviews do support the app, stating that it is "brilliant" and "absolutely incredible", but one review I noticed said how "this app is a joke". I personally agree with the review by a person with a randomly typed name 'Jjjjjordanrrr56:):?3$'djdndj'. For $2.99, this app isn't worth it, and in my opinion you're better off using either one of the many free apps, or using the default camera.

PXG'S REVIEW ROUNDUP: APPLICATIONS



PC software is also coming out daily, but I don't have many different software's to review. Most have been out for a while, but they are usually unknown and will definitely help you with your everyday computer life.

LastPass 3.0 is an online and offline password manager, featuring tonnes of tools such as encrypted password storage, offline storage, and one of the most useful tools I use. I use LastPass on an everyday basis, it means I can remember my passwords, and store them with multiple encryption methods. I personally have a seriously sh*t memory, and so LastPass is very useful, it can randomly generate you a password for any site you visit, then it temporarily stores that password until you save it. Other great features of this software are form filling, you can record your details such as name, address, phone numbers, etc and then good old LastPass will fill it in for you, personally I don't use this as a pirate, but it would be great for if I did. It also allows storage of 'secure notes' such as WiFi passwords, and other details you'd rather no one else saw. It has access from anywhere via the website, and addons for FireFox, Chrome, Safari, Opera, Maxthon, and even as a special feature called IE Anywhere. The whole thing is free, but LastPass Pro can be bought to allow for extra features and mobile storage.

Other softwares that I've tried this month include Network Inventory Software v4.2 and DivX Plus. Network Inventory was just something I wanted to try out, but in fact it's actually really useful. It is used to map out all the hardware and software you have on your network. This includes computers, phones, tablets, and other systems. It's simple to use and is quite quick. I haven't done a fully in depth look into it, but as far as I can tell, it's great if you have a large network of devices, or want to check up on your computers for a job. With a simple interface, it can display and detect any hardware or software changes, show computers on your network, show your licence keys and if they are going out of date, and much more. It's also completely free and doesn't take up much space on your system.

DivX Plus is a… I would say stylish, but it really isn't, media player. With support for MKV, AVI and DivX videos, you can watch them wherever you are. Just like VLC, Kodi, or other media software. It also comes bundled with the DivX Plus Codec Pack. This features tonnes of video and audio codecs that means you can play files on whatever software you have. Another thing the software comes with is an integrated media converter. This can convert any of your existing files into DivX or MKV, I don't recommend using this as it does decrease the quality and seems a bit pointless when you can already play your files. Although it was good for putting some videos on my test devices.

Overall, all 3 softwares are quite good and I'd definitely recommend LastPass to anyone who often forgets their countless passwords.

I am Love

Never from greed, I come
I can give life to anyone
The passion that you'll feel
But sometimes I can kill

I can always be your aegis
From all the hostile faces
If it's deception you'll see
It is definitely not me

Don't search for my presence
I'll come, just bear patience
I can fool you anytime
I can even cause you crime

I am the fire that burns inside
I heat up even more when I bind
Sometimes you'll blame my existence
After the pleasure and torments

You'll be surprised to see me anywhere
In places where you're unprepared
You'll never know me unless you try
I'll never say my name even if you cry

LA COMUNIDAD DE LA DIVERSIDAD

THE COMMUNITY OF THE DIVERSITY

Hola a todos:

Hello everybody:

Soy Inua y quiero asegurarme de que todo el mundo sepa que desde el 13 de enero, KAT tiene un forum para los hispano hablantes en Comunidad: https://kickass.so/community/spanish-community/. The Spanish Community, o para nosotros "La Comunidad de Hispano Parlantes" Acabamos de empezar y nos gustaría invitar a todos a pasar dentro, presentarse y darse una vuelta.

I'm Inua and I want to make sure that everybody knows that since January 13th, KAT has a forum for the Spanish speakers in the Community: https://kickass.so/community/spanish-community/. It is called The Spanish Community or for us "La Comunidad de Hispano Parlantes". We just started and we would like invite everybody to go inside, to introduce themselves and have a look around.

Es un espacio que KAT nos ha dado (¡Gracias!) y es nuestro. Podemos hacer lo que queramos (Respetando las reglas de KAT). Aquí puedes encontrar traducido al español: "Las reglas de KAT", "La guía del principiante", guías para crear torrentes, para ser uploader, para ser uploader verificado, para aprender a poner una imagen en un muro, para aprender a vincular una imagen con un vídeo, las reglas del blog... Pronto tendremos más guías – para que incluso sin saber apenas inglés puedas aprender a hacer muchas cosas.

This is a space that KAT has given to us (Thanks!) and it's ours. We can do whatever we want (Respecting KAT's rules). Here you can find translated into Spanish: "KAT's Rules", "The Beginners Guide to KickassTorrents", tutorials for creating torrents, becoming an uploader, becoming a VUL, for learning how to put a image in a wall, to learn to link a image with a video, the blog rules… Soon we will have more tutorials – so even if you don't know much English you'll still be able to learn a lot.

Tenemos hilos para hablar acerca de nuestras aficiones (películas, música, etc.…), y la posibilidad de que cada persona pueda crear un hilo con el tema que quiera en español. Aquí en nuestra lengua, podemos pedir ayuda o consejo. Puedes anunciar tus torrents y pedir ayuda para sembrarlos – como en la Comunidad principal en inglés.

We have threads for talking about our interests (movies, music, etc.…), and everyone can create a thread with whatever subject s/he wants in Spanish. Here, in our own language, we can ask for help and advice. You can announce your torrents, and ask for help seeding – just like in the main Community.

Este espacio es nuestro jardín. Es un sitio para que crezcan cosas hermosas, bellas relaciones humanas, un sitio para aprendamos nuevas capacidades de los demás, desarrollar ideas, intercambiar recetas para resolver problemas, hablar de nuestra aficiones comunes y desarrollar otras nuevas. Y por último y no menos importante, divertirnos. Es un sitio para encontrar otros hispano hablantes y compartir con ellos nuestra única y personal forma de ver las cosas. Un sitio para aprender a vivir en comunidad en un planeta que se ha hecho pequeño, porque la distancia (aquí en KAT) sólo depende de una intención.

This is our garden. It's a place for growing beautiful things: nice friendships, a place to learn new skills from others, develop ideas, interchange recipes for solving problems, for talking about our common interests (and uncommon interests) and growing new ones, and last but not least, for having fun. It's a place where we can meet other Spanish speakers from all over the world and share our own unique perspective. A place to live in community in a planet that has grown small, because the distance (here in KAT) only depends on an intention.

He preguntado a los hispano hablantes lo que creemos tener en común. La respuesta que más se ha repetido es la lealtad a las raíces, la solidaridad y la ayuda mutua. No se puede pedir más en un grupo humano.

I asked some of the Spanish speakers here at KAT what they believe we have in common. The more frequent answers were loyalty to our roots, solidarity and mutual help. You can't ask for more in a group of humans.

Recibid un fuerte abrazo virtual.

Receive a big virtual hug.

He enviado también una invitación abierta a los hispano hablante de KAT para decir unas palabras acerca de sí mismos, para que podamos conocernos un poco major. Varios de los miembros de la Comunidad de hispano hablantes también quieren darse a conocer a los miembros de KAT.

I also sent out an open invitation to Spanish speakers here at KAT to say a few words about themselves, so we can all get to know each other a little better. Some of the members of the Spanish Community also want to take this opportunity to introduce themselves to the members of KAT.

omnstar:

Hola, soy omnstar y soy de Chile, me gusta mirar KAT para ver que va saliendo para descargar. Saludos.

Hi! I'm omnstar and I'm from Chile, I like to look in KAT to see what new things are coming out to download. Cheers.

frankione:

Soy asiduo al KAT y he subido algunas cosas en este maravilloso Tracker. Vivo en España pero soy nacido en Venezuela cuando era un país más hermoso que ahora. Soy melómano y músico retirado, me encanta la energía eólica, conducir grandes trayectos y apasionado del buen comer..!

I'm a regular at KAT and I've uploaded some things to this wonderful Tracker. I live in Spain, but I was born in Venezuela -- when it was a more beautiful country than now. I'm a music lover and a retired musician, I love wind energy, taking long drives, and I'm passionate about good food…!

Alansepsy:

¡Hola! Mi nombre es Alan y soy mexicano de corazón, aunque estadounidense de sangre. Vivo en México y amo la libertad ya que es un derecho universal que todos deberíamos poseer. Sin embargo los gobiernos tratan de quitarnos la libertad, haciendo ilegal sitios donde compartimos nuestras películas, música, etc.

Por eso es indispensable que esta y otras comunidades sigan vivas, ¡podemos ayudar a acabar con la opresión!

Hello! My name is Alan and I'm Mexican at heart, even if I'm my blood is from the United States. I live in Mexico and I love freedom because it's a universal right that we should all possess. However, the governments are trying to remove our freedom, making these places where we share our movies, music, etc. illegal.

For that, it's indispensible that communities like this remain alive, so we can help to end the oppression!

Allamistakeo:

Soy Allamistakeo, de la ciudad de Santiago de Chile. Soy historiador del arte y editor, trabajador radiofónico y sobre todo un leal miembro de KAT. Sé que por ello soy un torrentero, aunque no todos conozcan el concepto y suele ser complicado explicarlo, como si uno hablara en chino mandarín.

Conocí a KAT hace poco más de dos años, luego del paso obligado por otros sitios de torrent, como Mininova, The Pirate Bay e isoHunt, sabiendo de las bondades de programas como el antiguo Shareaza o el µTorrent, de sitios históricos de alojamiento como Megaupload, Badongo, RapidShare, o de plataformas como Taringa!, blogs temáticos y tantos más, en esta aventura épica de la piratería y la libre distribución de archivos.

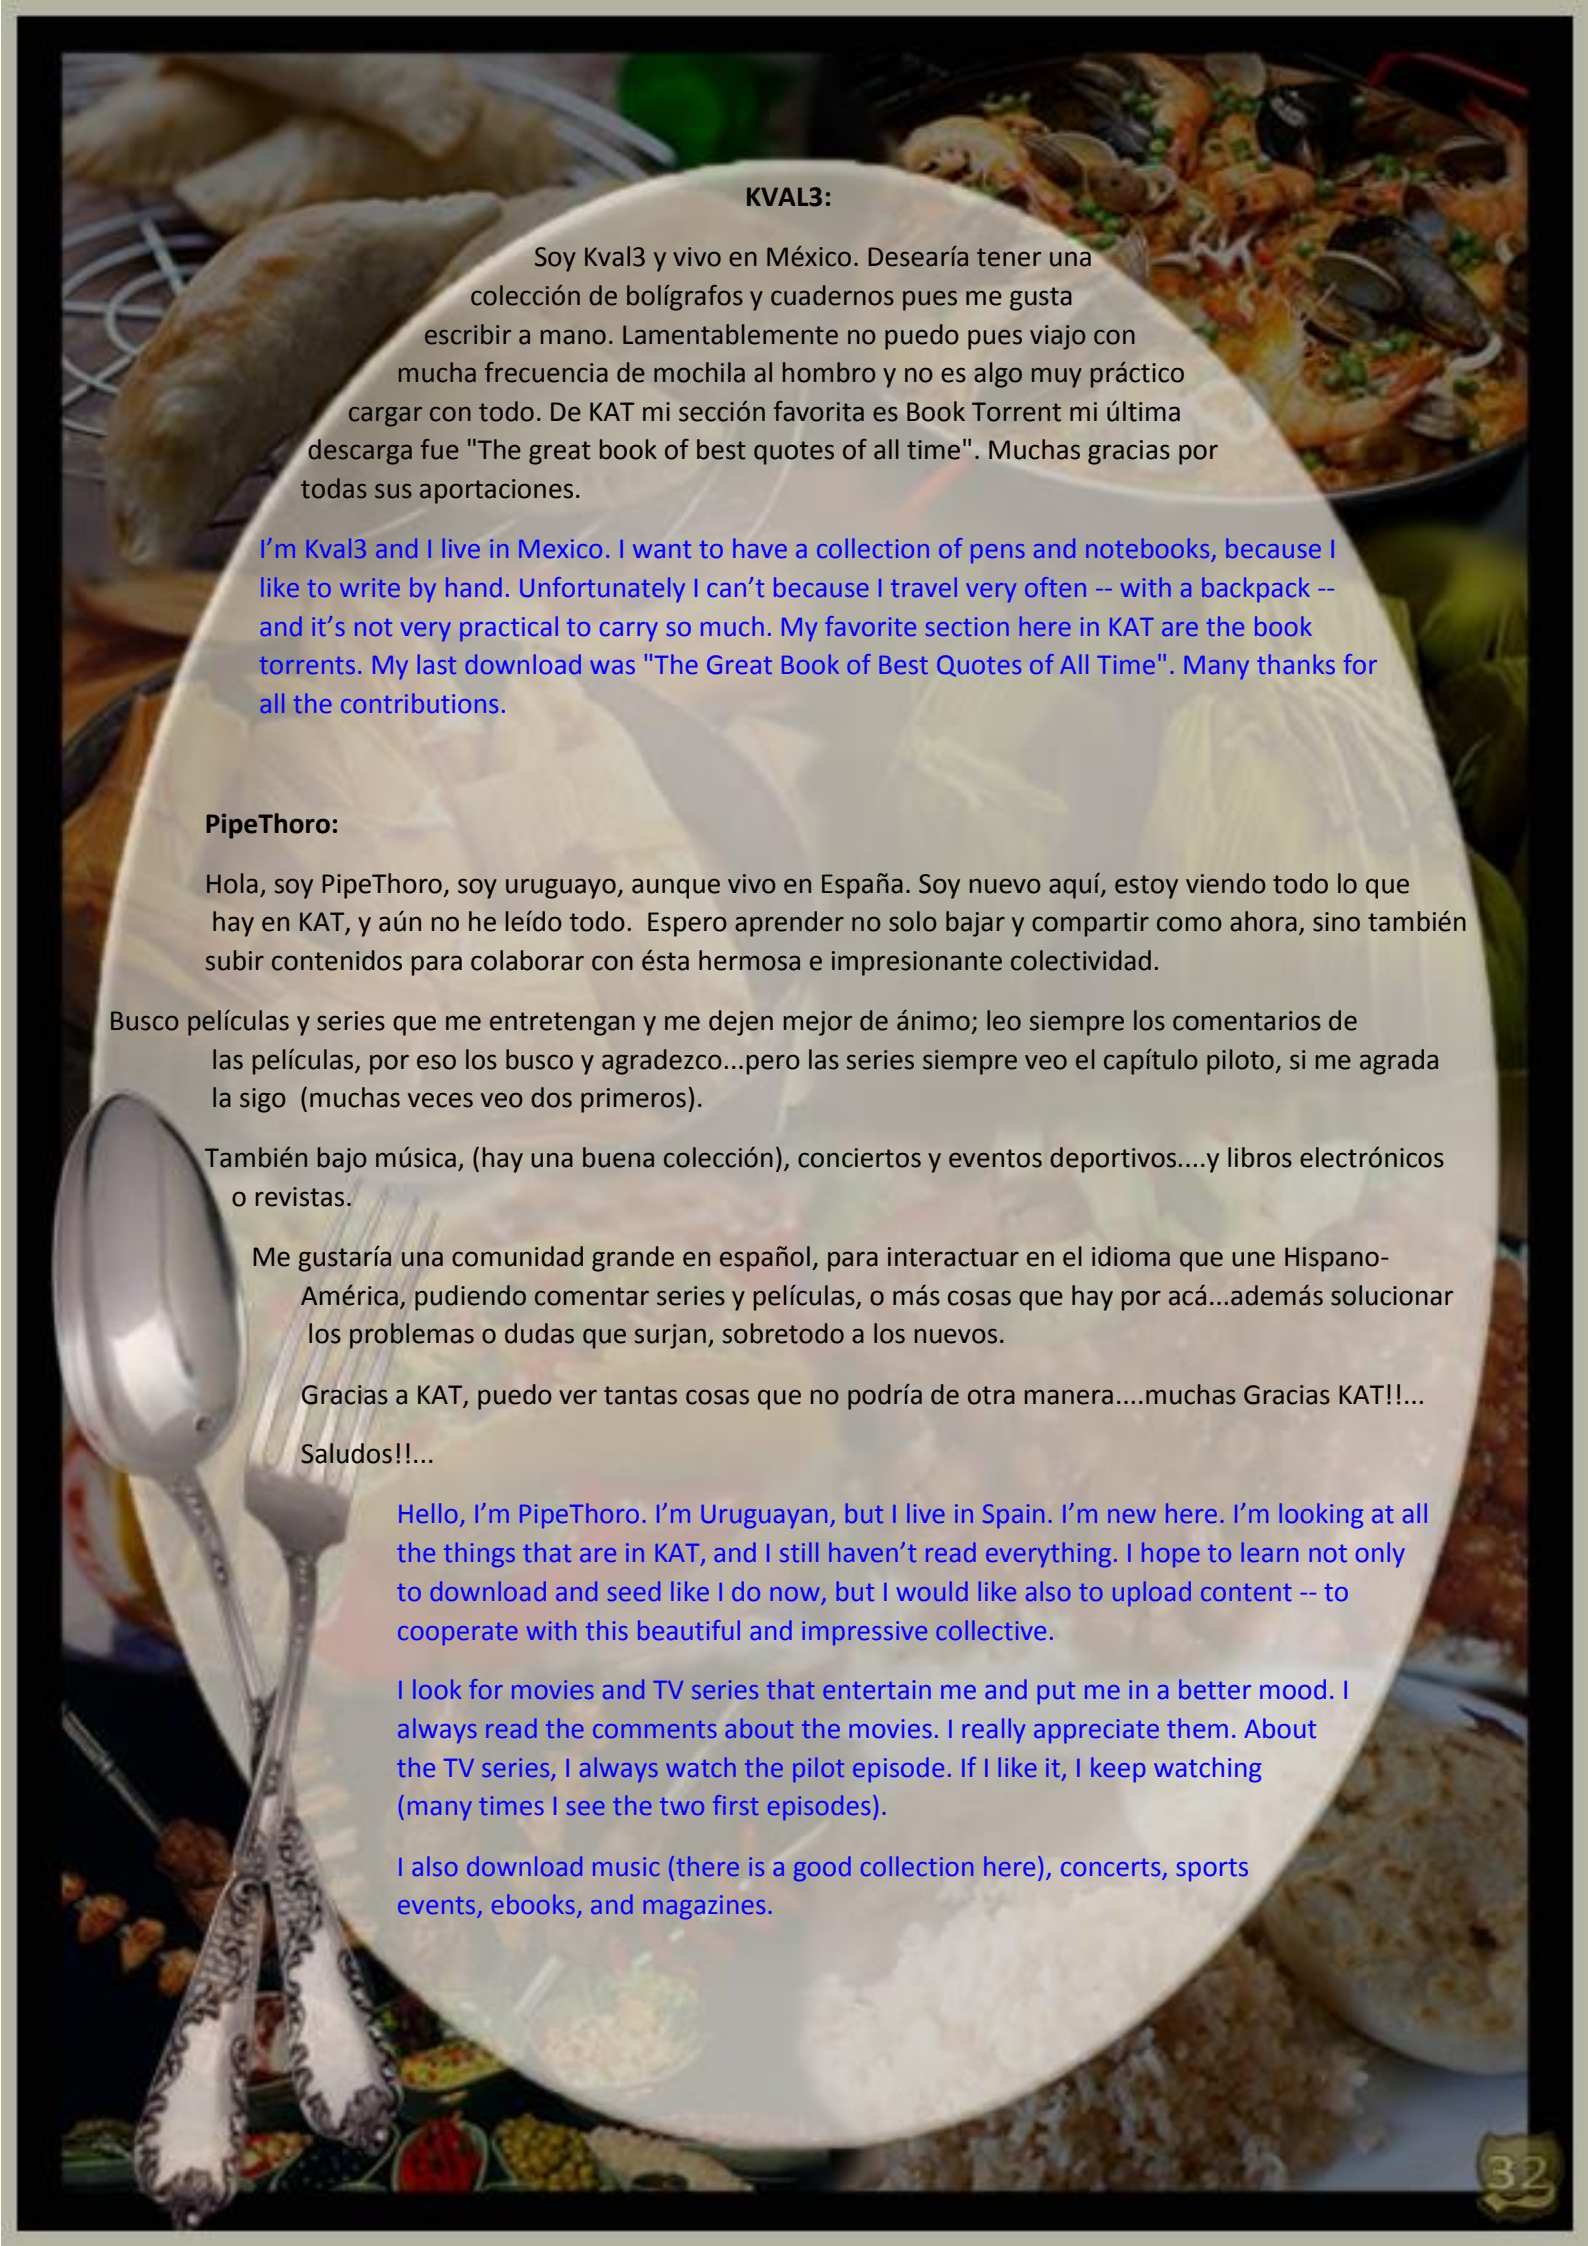
En un principio fui un gran descargador de torrents, pero cuando conocí a KAT me transformé también en uploader; me encantó la forma original y entretenida que tienen de vivir la experiencia de compartir archivos, algo que los hace únicos en su tipo. Todo esto pese a las malas condiciones de tecnología que nos afecta a muchos latinos, por el asunto de la pésima velocidad de subida en nuestros países. Con el tiempo consideré que mi misión en KAT era difundir música de este lejano lugar del mundo, mi humilde aporte que, pese a los inconvenientes, me ha dado algo de buena reputación, ganando las medallas que no hubiese podido obtener de ninguna otra forma :).

Tengo gran admiración por algunos usuarios de este sitio que han alimentado a KAT en todos estos años y celebro que sigamos con vida y que la comunidad latina crezca en KAT pateándole el trasero a la censura y las organizaciones infames que lo único que hacen es lucrar con el conocimiento, los artistas y sus creaciones.

I'm Allamistakeo, from the city of Santiago de Chile. I'm an art historian, an editor, radio worker, and mostly a loyal member of KAT. I know this because I'm a dedicated torrenter … even if others don't know the concept and it's usually difficult to explain, as if I was speaking mandarin… I've been visiting KAT for a little more than two years. Before that, I passed through many other torrent sites like Mininova, The Pirate Bay, and isoHunt. Using those good old programs like Shareaza or µTorrent, other historic file sharing sites like Megaupload, Badongo, and RapidShare, or platforms like Taringa!, thematic blogs, and so much more in this epic adventure of piracy and file sharing.

In the beginning I was a heavy torrent downloader, but after discovering KAT, I became an uploader too. I love it here, because of the original and fun way that you share files, something that makes this place unique. I became an uploader, even with the bad technological conditions that affect us latinos, like terrible upload speeds. With the passing of time I considered that my mission in KAT was to spread the music from this far away place in the world. My humble addition -- even with those difficulties -- gave me a good reputation and gave me some medals that I couldn't have gotten in any other way ☺.

I have a great admiration for some of users here who have been feeding KAT all these years and I'm so happy that we're still alive and that the Latino Community will grow, kicking the ass of censorship and the infamous organizations that only enrich themselves from the knowledge and creations of the artists.



KVAL3:

Soy Kval3 y vivo en México. Desearía tener una colección de bolígrafos y cuadernos pues me gusta escribir a mano. Lamentablemente no puedo pues viajo con mucha frecuencia de mochila al hombro y no es algo muy práctico cargar con todo. De KAT mi sección favorita es Book Torrent mi última descarga fue "The great book of best quotes of all time". Muchas gracias por todas sus aportaciones.

I'm Kval3 and I live in Mexico. I want to have a collection of pens and notebooks, because I like to write by hand. Unfortunately I can't because I travel very often -- with a backpack -- and it's not very practical to carry so much. My favorite section here in KAT are the book torrents. My last download was "The Great Book of Best Quotes of All Time". Many thanks for all the contributions.

PipeThoro:

Hola, soy PipeThoro, soy uruguayo, aunque vivo en España. Soy nuevo aquí, estoy viendo todo lo que hay en KAT, y aún no he leído todo. Espero aprender no solo bajar y compartir como ahora, sino también subir contenidos para colaborar con ésta hermosa e impresionante colectividad.

Busco películas y series que me entretengan y me dejen mejor de ánimo; leo siempre los comentarios de las películas, por eso los busco y agradezco...pero las series siempre veo el capítulo piloto, si me agrada la sigo (muchas veces veo dos primeros).

También bajo música, (hay una buena colección), conciertos y eventos deportivos....y libros electrónicos o revistas.

Me gustaría una comunidad grande en español, para interactuar en el idioma que une Hispano-América, pudiendo comentar series y películas, o más cosas que hay por acá...además solucionar los problemas o dudas que surjan, sobretodo a los nuevos.

Gracias a KAT, puedo ver tantas cosas que no podría de otra manera....muchas Gracias KAT!!...

Saludos!!...

Hello, I'm PipeThoro. I'm Uruguayan, but I live in Spain. I'm new here. I'm looking at all the things that are in KAT, and I still haven't read everything. I hope to learn not only to download and seed like I do now, but I would like also to upload content -- to cooperate with this beautiful and impressive collective.

I look for movies and TV series that entertain me and put me in a better mood. I always read the comments about the movies. I really appreciate them. About the TV series, I always watch the pilot episode. If I like it, I keep watching (many times I see the two first episodes).

I also download music (there is a good collection here), concerts, sports events, ebooks, and magazines.

I would like a big Community in Spanish, to interact in the language that unites Hispano-America, so we can comment on TV series, movies, and many other things that are here… also to be able to solve the problems or doubts that arise, mostly to the newbies.

Thanks to KAT, I can see so many things that I couldn't if you didn't exist…So many thanks KAT!!...

Greetings!!...

mpuchos:

Hola soy mpuchos vivo en ... (Suecia creo, según mi IP ahora mismo... rofl), me gusta la música en todo sus estilos, por eso contribuyo con mi granito de arena a dar a conocer mi música (Argentina), con la que me he criado, ya no soy un niño, y creo que no se deben perder las raíces de donde provienes, ya sea, del país que seas.

Mis subidas son en formato FLAC, de música Argentina. Mi conexión a internet no es mala, sino malísima, pero si yo puedo subir, no creo en los que dicen "tengo mala conexión, no puedo compartir"... wink.

¡Hello! I'm mpuchos, I live in … (Sweden if I believe my IP now… rofl), I like music of all styles, for that I contribute my little grain of sand to make my music (Argentinian) known - - which is the one with I grew up with. I'm not a child, and I believe that you shouldn't lose your roots, whatever your country.

My uploads are Argentinian music in FLAC format. My internet connection is not bad … it's the worst. So if I can upload, anyone can. I don't believe the people that say "My connection is bad, so I can't share"… wink.

Fulano:

«Hola, soy Fulano de por ahí. Me apasiona el snow (no tengo tiempo), el alpinismo (no tengo tiempo), los coches clásicos (me tuve que deshacer de varios vehículos y motos porque cambié de país), leer (en papel, pero no tengo tiempo) y la cocina (a esto si le dedico tiempo :). Intenté participar en los foros, pero los de nuestra lengua estaban más muertos que vivos. No soy uploader en esta web, ya que hay una gran cantidad y calidad de archivos, aunque si colaboro ocasionalmente en otros comunidades más pequeñas. En definitiva, vengo por acá a bajar principalmente música para combatir las laaaargas horas frente a la pantalla. Tenéis que saber que creo contenidos culturales y sí, descargo porque al precio que nos pagan y al precio al que os lo venden es una estafa y solo se llenan los bolsillos las mismas empresas de siempre que no quieren cambiar el sistema. En fin, no fumo, no bebo y como decía al principio, si el día tuviera 32 horas seguiría sin tiempo»

"Hi, I'm Joe Bloggs from around here. I'm passionate about snow (but I have not time), mountain climbing (I don't have time), the classic cars (I had to get rid of a few cars and motorbikes because I changed country), to read (on paper, but I don't have time) and cooking (yes, for that I find time ☺). I tried to participate in the forum in Spanish, but the people of our language are more dead than alive. I'm not an uploader on this site, because there are already a lot of files of great quality, but I cooperate occasionally in smaller communities. In short, I come here to download, mostly music, to combat the looooong hours in front of the computer screen. You should know that I create cultural content and yes, I download because it's a scam -- the difference between the money that they pay to us (content creators) and the price that they sell the product for. That's only filling the pockets of the same old companies that don't want to change the system. Anyway I don't smoke, I don't drink, and as I said in the beginning, if a day would have 32 hours I would be needing more time."

Inua

¡Hola soy Inua! Hace seis meses, mi marido, Anomolous, me trajo aquí y desde entonces dedico a KAT varias (o muchas) horas al día. Me paso cada día por la Comunidad y el resto del tiempo lo dedico a traducir, leer blogs, mirar fotos graciosas de gatos… lo normal. Ahora estoy traduciendo las FAQ al español.

Subo y bajo casi exclusivamente libros, pero tengo que confesar que desde que estoy aquí apenas leo libros ¡no tengo tiempo! Todo mi tiempo libre lo dedico a KAT. Me gustan los árboles y los gatos (y mi marido).

¡Hello! I'm Inua. Six months ago my husband, Anomalous, introduced me to KAT and since then I spend a few (or several) hours here every day. I pass by the Spanish Community every day and the rest of the time I dedicate to: translating, reading blogs, looking at funny pictures of cats … the usual. Now I'm translating the FAQ into Spanish.

I almost exclusively upload and download books, but I must confess that since I'm here I hardly read books anymore. I don't have time! All my free time I dedicate to KAT. I love trees and cats (and my husband).

Una pregunta para ver cómo nos vemos a nosotros mismos como Comunidad que habla una misma lengua (con muchas y ricas variantes).

A question to see how we see ourselves as a Community that speaks the same language (with many rich variations of meaning for the same words).

¿Qué crees tú que tenemos en común los hispano parlantes ? ¿En qué crees que somos únicos comparados con otras culturas?¿Hay algo especial que tenemos en común? Me interesa saber algo positivo, pero si no tienes nada positivo que decir y quieres decir algo negativo, también es aceptable.

What do you think that we Spanish speakers have in common? What, in your opinion, makes us unique compared to other cultures? Is there something especial that we have in common? I'm interested in knowing something positive, but if you have nothing positive to say, go ahead and say something negative.

guerrera:

Mi opinión es que los hispanohablantes, a mí me gusta más este término, tenemos una raíz cultural, lingüística, gastronómica, artística, histórica común, aparte de que cada país tenga una o más raíces añadidas en base a su historia, sus habitantes y las alianzas que con otros países pudieran hacer en su día. La lengua nos une, entendiendo por lengua no solo hablarla, sino divulgarla, conservarla, extenderla, con los matices de cada país que la enriquece sobremanera y es la forma de sentirnos identificados, respetados y orgullosos por la responsabilidad que conlleva que no se pierda nuestra identidad. Si, al fin y al cabo una identidad.

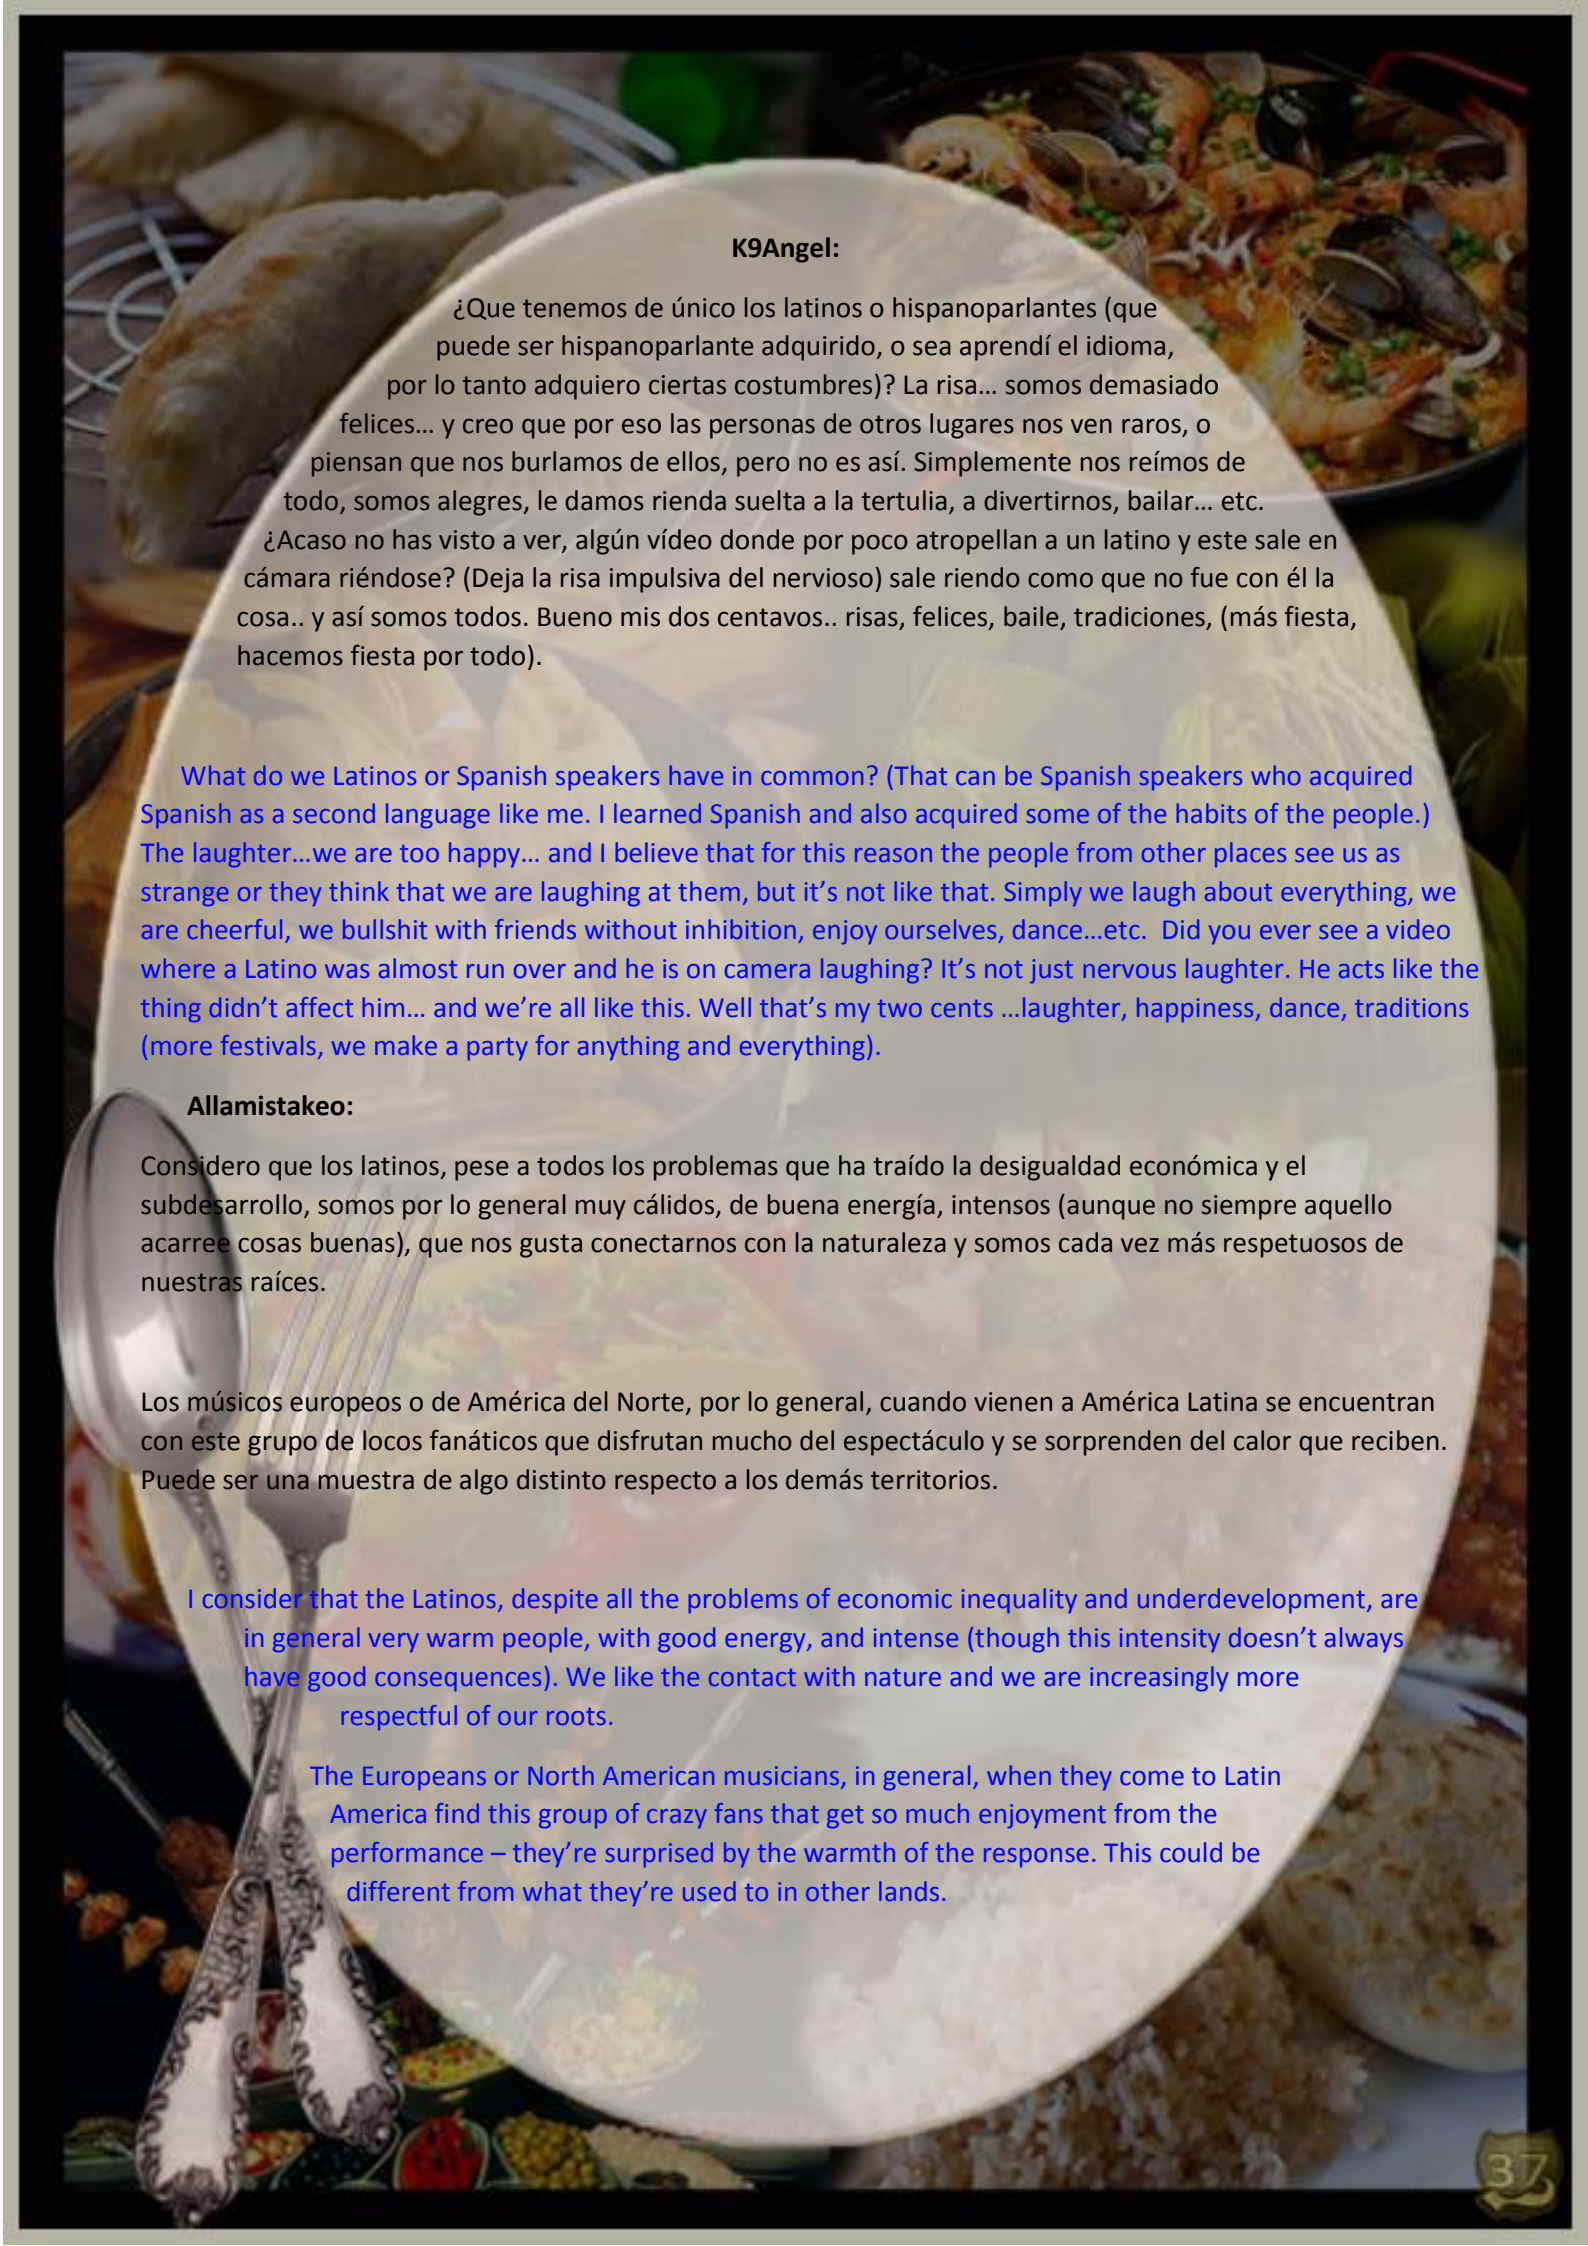
No se si he respondido a tu pregunta.

Saludos y como dicen en Costa Rica, PURA VIDA.

My opinion is that the Spanish speakers (I like better the word “hispanohablantes” than “hispanoparlantes”) have a common root that is cultural, linguistic, gastronomic, artistic and historic. Besides that, each county has its own added roots based on its history, inhabitants, and alliances with other countries. The language unites us. By language, I mean not only speaking Spanish, but also spreading, preserving, and extending it (with the nuances of each country’s use of Spanish that make it so rich). This is the way we feel ourselves identified, respected – and we are proud of the responsibility of keeping this identity alive. It is our responsibility to preserve this, so we don’t lose our identity.

I don’t know if I have answered your question.

Greetings and as they say in Costa Rica, PURA VIDA or “Pure Life”.



K9Angel:

¿Que tenemos de único los latinos o hispanoparlantes (que puede ser hispanoparlante adquirido, o sea aprendí el idioma, por lo tanto adquiero ciertas costumbres)? La risa… somos demasiado felices… y creo que por eso las personas de otros lugares nos ven raros, o piensan que nos burlamos de ellos, pero no es así. Simplemente nos reímos de todo, somos alegres, le damos rienda suelta a la tertulia, a divertirnos, bailar… etc. ¿Acaso no has visto a ver, algún vídeo donde por poco atropellan a un latino y este sale en cámara riéndose? (Deja la risa impulsiva del nervioso) sale riendo como que no fue con él la cosa.. y así somos todos. Bueno mis dos centavos.. risas, felices, baile, tradiciones, (más fiesta, hacemos fiesta por todo).

What do we Latinos or Spanish speakers have in common? (That can be Spanish speakers who acquired Spanish as a second language like me. I learned Spanish and also acquired some of the habits of the people.) The laughter…we are too happy… and I believe that for this reason the people from other places see us as strange or they think that we are laughing at them, but it's not like that. Simply we laugh about everything, we are cheerful, we bullshit with friends without inhibition, enjoy ourselves, dance…etc. Did you ever see a video where a Latino was almost run over and he is on camera laughing? It's not just nervous laughter. He acts like the thing didn't affect him… and we're all like this. Well that's my two cents …laughter, happiness, dance, traditions (more festivals, we make a party for anything and everything).

Allamistakeo:

Considero que los latinos, pese a todos los problemas que ha traído la desigualdad económica y el subdesarrollo, somos por lo general muy cálidos, de buena energía, intensos (aunque no siempre aquello acarree cosas buenas), que nos gusta conectarnos con la naturaleza y somos cada vez más respetuosos de nuestras raíces.

Los músicos europeos o de América del Norte, por lo general, cuando vienen a América Latina se encuentran con este grupo de locos fanáticos que disfrutan mucho del espectáculo y se sorprenden del calor que reciben. Puede ser una muestra de algo distinto respecto a los demás territorios.

I consider that the Latinos, despite all the problems of economic inequality and underdevelopment, are in general very warm people, with good energy, and intense (though this intensity doesn't always have good consequences). We like the contact with nature and we are increasingly more respectful of our roots.

The Europeans or North American musicians, in general, when they come to Latin America find this group of crazy fans that get so much enjoyment from the performance – they're surprised by the warmth of the response. This could be different from what they're used to in other lands.

KVAL3:

Estuve pensando en la pregunta de lo común que tenemos los hispanohablantes hasta les pregunte algunos amig@s y concluíamos en lo obvio de la lengua. Lo único diferente que se nos ocurrió es la calidad del café Latino...

I was thinking about the question of what we Spanish speakers have in common, and I even asked my friends. We arrived at the conclusion of the one obvious thing: the language. The only difference that we could think of was the quality of the Latino coffee.

Prairi3DoG:

Lo que a mi parecer nos hace únicos, es nuestra idiosincrasia, somos muy apegados a valores heredados de nuestras pasadas generaciones familiares ... hemos evolucionado y nos hemos visto de manera más lenta (afortunadamente) menos afectados por el fenómeno migratorio, que por ende es la razón de las integraciones de otras culturas y sus costumbres. Esto de manera lógica nos ha mantenidos menos expuestos a esos cambios, logrando así antener nuestras orígenes y raíces.

The thing that in my opinion makes us unique, that distinguishes us from others, is that we are very attached to the inherited values passed down through the generations in our families… we have evolved and we have been less affected and in a slower way (fortunately) by the migration phenomena. That is, how in “melting pot” cultures, as people integrate, they lose their cultural identity, traditions, and cultures. Logically, this has kept us less exposed to changes, so we could preserve our origins and roots.

PipeThoro:

Por supuesto que tenemos algo que es lo que nos une, diferencia y les complica al resto del mundo...el idioma, donde es posible tener varias formas de decir "casi" lo mismo, donde las sutilezas se hacen con la diferencia.

Además si bien bajo películas en castellano, mayormente, al ver en latino de Méjico, Colombia, o Argentina aprendo distintas formas de decir o expresarse.

El idioma español, en todas las formas, ésto nos une...

Saludos!!...

Of course we have something that unite us, differentiate us, and complicates the things for the rest of the world*…the language. In Spanish, with so many regional variations, it's possible to say "almost" the same thing in several different ways, each with its own subtle nuance of meaning. For example, I mostly download movies in Castilian (the Spanish of Spain), and when I watch the Spanish of Mexico, Colombia or Argentina, I learn different ways to say or express things. So…the Spanish language, in all the variations, it's the thing that unites us…

spongebobo:

"Hoy quiero compartir algo con quienes se tomen la molestia de seguir estas líneas y es la celebración del espíritu de pertenencia que, quienes mínimamente participamos de KAT cultivamos a diario. Creo que el hecho de haber elegido inequívocamente esta comunidad en el inmenso universo digital no puede ser casual sino motorizado por intereses comunes, afinidades ideológicas o necesidades compartidas.

Claro que la diversidad de KAT se enriquece con la participación de innumerables tribus digitales y esencialmente por comunidades de personas reales amalgamadas mucho más que por una cuestión de idioma, tal como nuestra querida e incipiente comunidad hispano parlante.

Una comunidad joven, de espíritu fraternal, basada plenamente en una educación donde la familia resulta ser la más valiosa de nuestras posesiones.

Nadie podría negar que el culto a la amistad y los valores morales, el honrar la palabra empeñada y la cultura del trabajo, definen aristas fundamentales de cada integrante de nuestra querible comunidad. Si hasta las expresiones artísticas son parte vital de nuestra identidad, así como nuestra pasión por el deporte y el compromiso religioso y social.

¿Qué característica sobresaliente definiría mejor a nuestra comunidad que la solidaridad? Estoy seguro de que todos hemos participado de una u otra manera colaborando con quien lo necesitara y, debo confesar que es la virtud que prefiero resaltar entre otras tantas que nos caracterizan ya que podría asegurar sin temor a equivocarme que el hecho de haber necesitado ayuda en algún momento de nuestras vidas y siempre haber encontrado una mano amiga nos ha atravesado a todos en alguna oportunidad.

Como sea, supongo que quería manifestar el orgullo que siento de pertenecer a KAT pero sobre todas las cosas, el de formar parte de esta hermosa comunidad en la que compartimos mucho más que un mismo idioma."

Today I want to share something with those who take the time to follow these lines: the celebration of the “spirit of belonging” that those who participate at KAT (even minimally) cultivate every day. I believe that the fact of having chosen this Community, in the immense digital universe, is not accidental, but is propelled by common interests, ideological affinities, and shared needs.

Of course, the diversity in KAT gets richer with the participation of countless digital tribes, and essentialy by communities of real people held together by much more than a question of language, like our beloved and incipient Spanish Community.

We are young community, with a fraternal spirit, fully based on a upbringing where the family is our most prized possesion.

Nobody can deny that commitment to friends, and moral values, like honoring our promises and our work ethic, define the fundamental edges of our dear community. Artistic expressions are also a vital part of our identity, together with our passion for sports and social and religious commitment.

Which outstanding characteristic could define better our community than solidarity? I’m pretty sure that all of us have participated in some way, cooperating with those in need, and I must confess that it’s the virtue that I prefer to highlight among so many more that we have. I can say without doubt that whenever we have needed help at some moment in our lives, we always found a friendly hand, and that has occurred to us all at some point.

So, I suppose that I want to express how proud I feel because I belong to KAT, and even more to belong to this beautiful community in which we share much more than the same language.”

mpuchos:

Que tenemos en común, creo que la solidaridad, no en sedear (titter), pero si a nivel Latinoamerica-España. Creo que a pesar de todo lo que hemos vivido, seguimos siendo solidarios ante catástrofes, injusticias, hambre, etc. No digo que los demás no lo sean, pero... eso es lo que se me viene ahora mismo a la cabeza.

What we have in common, I believe is solidarity, (not when it comes to seeding - wink), but in the sense of solidarity between Latin America and Spain. I believe that despite everything we have been through, we still feel solidarity in cases of catastrophes, Injustices, famine, etc. I don't mean that other communities aren't also, but… that's the first thing that came to my mind.

A huge thank you to the Spanish community. Translated by Inua.
